HIPPIE

Boston Boho

Trading pearls for paisley, baseball hats for Birkenstocks, Boston goes boho with its Hippy Chic exhibition at the Museum of Fine Arts (mfa.org, July 16-November 11). In honor of this free-spirited display, we break down the best way to get hippified in the capitol of khaki.

■ West End Johnnie's Mellow the harsh of that hangover with a side of ska with your brunch, mon. Live bands play reggae hits while you nosh on eggs and coffee from 11am to 4pm every Sunday. Your tie-dye shirt never looked better. johnniesontheside.com

■ Cambridge Naturals Founded during the height of hippie, in the '70s, this shop has homeopathic remedies a-plenty, kombucha and herbs galore, and more chia flour and all-natural beauty products than you can shake a spirit stick at. cambridgenaturals.com

■ Life Alive Nurture body and soul at this organic café that serves vegetarian, vegan, macrobiotic, raw and gluten-free meals, salads, and juices with names like Mystic Mountain and The Healer. Hippy grub at its finest—try their signature Goddess dish, "Ginger Nama Shoyu Sauce, nurturing carrots, beets, broccoli, dark greens and tofu gracing short-grain brown rice." lifealive.com

■ The Hempest Need a cotton alternative? The Hempest claims to have the largest selection of organic hemp clothing and products in the world. And what's more hippie than hemp? store.hempest.com

■ Tibet Arts From incense and malas, to ghongs, thangkas, mandala sets and Tibetan herbal products, this shop wishes to share "Tibet's wondrous artistry and profound Buddhist spirituality with the world." It'll have hippie hearts fluttering faster than a sirsasana headstand. tibetarts.com

■ Free People It may be a nationwide chain, but this store inside the Prudential, only for the hippest of hippies, can't be missed. Fringe, flowers and flare abound. freepeople.com

FOOTBALL FANTASY

Like the game itself, the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, OH, has been transformed over the years—from a humble two-building campus in 1963 to a modern and massive 118,000-square foot facility unveiled this year for the Hall's 50th anniversary. It's a veritable football fantasy. BY JACKSON PERRY
